Educación Primaria

This series aims to teach mathematics through the direct observation of reality. Thus, the curricular components of the course are presented in narrative situations that are either familiar or wholly imaginary.

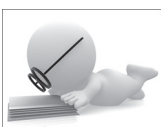

The problems confronting the characters in the stories require pupils constantly to use their powers of observation, to measure, to count, to find solutions – and thereby, in a spirit of playfulness, to acquire the rudiments of mathematics.

The texts – clear, concise and written in easily comprehensible English – are reinforced by a wealth of lively illustrations, photographs, diagrams and tables. Further backup and testing material is available from our website.

Science | Primary School

Discovering Science

Natural and Social Sciences

Discovering Science is a new course designed for schools engaging in bilingual education at primary level. The course, entirely in English, centres on the study of the environment. A thoroughly modern method, it develops pupils' interest in environmental issues while simultaneously allowing them to take their first steps in English.

Discovering Science is a practical and flexible teaching tool. It can easily be adapted to different circumstances, requirements, schedules and teaching areas, as well, of course, as to the specific needs of the pupils.

Its activities, based on the latest research into TPR (total physical response) and multiple intelligences, are both enjoyable and effective, placing Discovering Science in the forefront of such courses for children.

Extra activities These activities are optional and are useful to extend a short lesson, to give fast-finishers something else to do or to help those students with difficulties, reinforce the topic.

A complete method

This method offers a balance between theory and practice.

It introduces and develops the contents of: history, culture, geography and natural/social sciences, in a bilingual environment, starting off from previous knowledge, and the boys and girls' experiences.

The lessons are structured around each of the learning areas.

The design of the activities is based on our experience in the classroom. The activities are easy to use and they demonstrate how efficient our method is in getting class results.

The lesson structure promotes good habits and routines in a positive learning environment. The space and the groups vary according to the activities.

A practical method

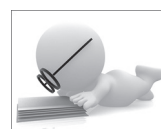

Due to its flexibility, this method can be adapted to different criteria, requirements, schedules, school space and the special needs of students.

 - Posters in electronic format.

READERS

Graded readers | Stories for thinking students

The Clearing

Deep in the Amazonian jungle, a man wakes up with a problem to solve: a deadly snake is sleeping on his chest, and the only person who can help him doesn't know how to. Themes for reflection and discussion: knowing and respecting Nature, preserving the environment, racial tensions and learning respect for others.

Series of graded readers specially designed for young people who want to think for themselves - in English!

Four levels of difficulty, corresponding to the first, second, third and fourth years of the E.S.O. syllabus and employing a basic vocabulary of 600, 1000, 1500 and 2000 words.

Original stories with a small number of main characters and strong narratives guaranteed to keep readers hooked from beginning to end.

Each story dramatises social and moral themes to encourage pupils to really "think in English" and to inspire classroom discussion. Themes range from bullying at school and teenage drug abuse to international terrorism and the war in Iraq.

Each volume contains a full range of grammar, vocabulary and comprehension exercises as well as an extensive glossary of difficult words.

Another bad idea

Five minutes later, Antonio heard the crackling of branches burning. The Yankee was building up the fire. But what on earth for? Antonio waited. Shortly afterwards, he heard the sound of a knife being sharpened against a stone. What on earth was this stupid Yankee thinking of?

Eventually the American crawled back into the tent, this time carrying a machete. Making signs with his hands, he tried to explain to Antonio what he intended to do. But Antonio could make no sense of the American's signs. He had no idea what the other man was trying to communicate. All that he could see was that the American's plan was a complicated one, which meant that it was necessarily a bad one. For Antonio knew what the American had to do, and it was simple, so simple!

If only Antonio could speak! If only he could tell the American what to do! But he didn't dare even to whisper. Antonio knew, of course, that snakes are totally deaf, but he knew also that they can sense the slightest vibrations of the air. Anything he said would resonate in his chest and the snake would feel it.

Similarly, he didn't dare either to use his right hand, which lay outside the sleeping bag, to signal to the American. If he moved his hand, muscles would inevitably move in his arm, in his shoulder, in his chest.

TESTS

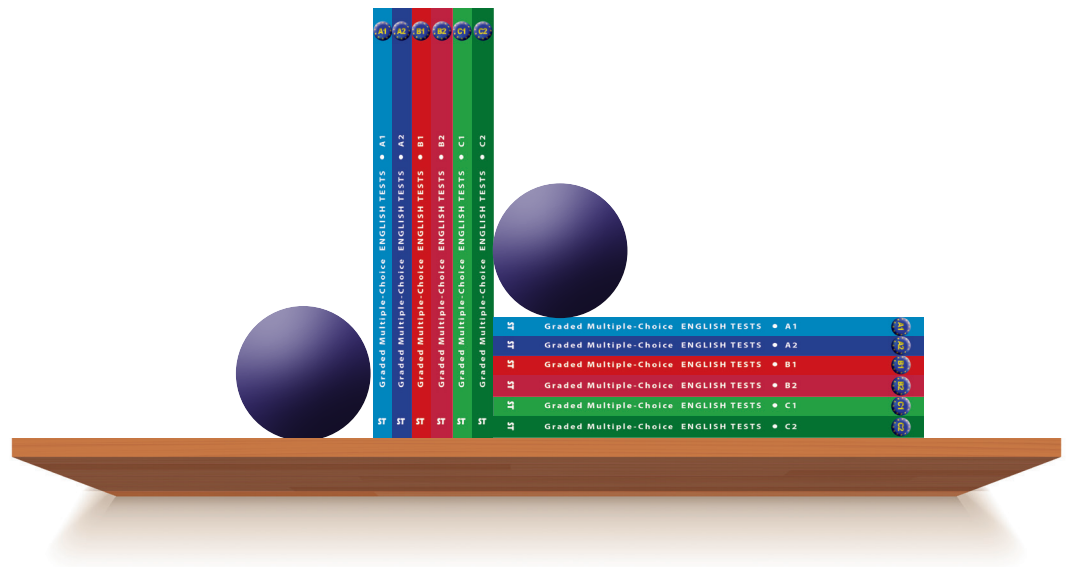

English Tests | Graded Multiple-Choice

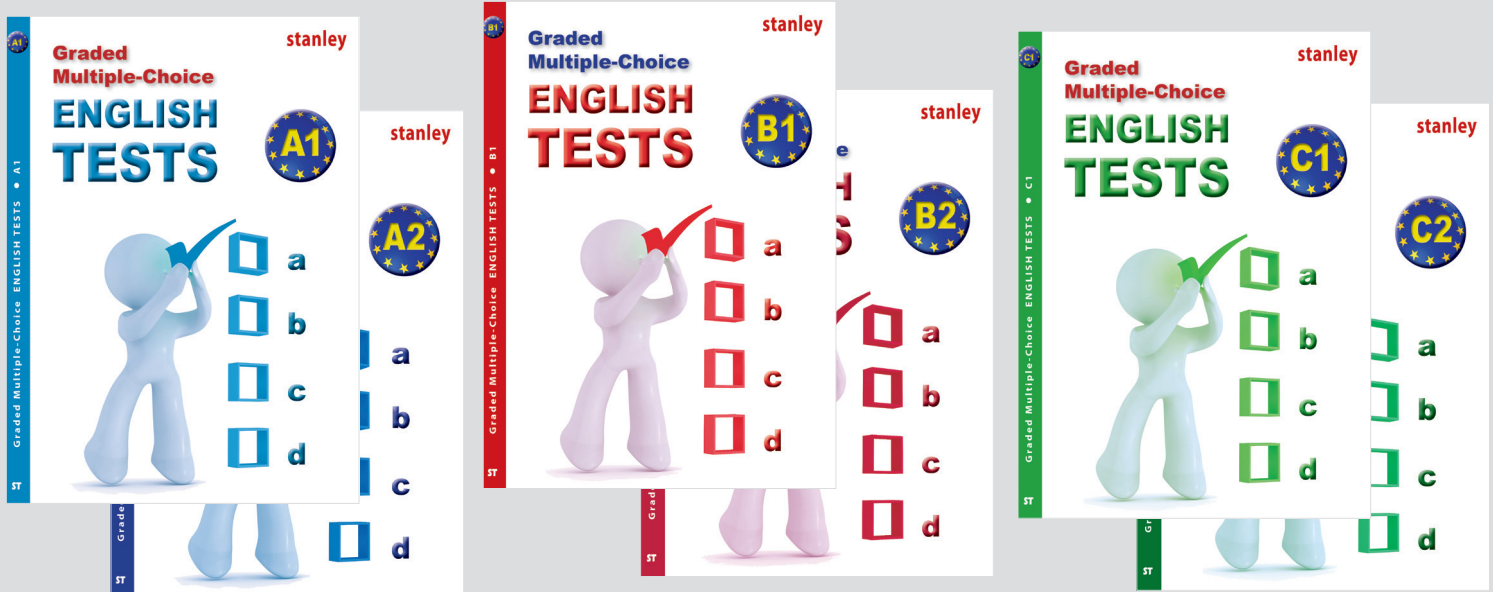

A six-book series. Each book corresponds to a level of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages – A1 (elementary), A2 (post-elementary), B1 (pre-intermediate), B2 (intermediate), C1 (early advanced), and C2 (advanced) – and contains twelve multiple-choice tests, each test consisting of fifty questions.

Mainly, the tests examine a student's knowledge of grammatical structures, but lexical items, such as common idioms, collocations, phrasal verbs and "false friends" are also tested, increasingly from intermediate level onwards.

englishtests app is also available
www.stanleypublishing.es

A1 to C2

The twelve 30-minute tests in each book are graded by difficulty and can be easily administered and corrected. But these are not simply tests to determine a student's knowledge of grammar and vocabulary. They are designed also to be used as valuable teaching tools in their own right, permitting teachers and students to review the most common structures and difficulties of English and to monitor their progress as they go.
